Dear Friend,

What if you could know before spending a dime on marketing, whether your business was destined to fail or succeed? What would that be worth to you?

Just think, you could save yourself a small fortune. If you now before hand, you were about to make a small fortune. Wouldn't be great to know your outcome before you start marketing?

If you had this power, the power to know in advance where your business would fail or succeed, and know approximately how much money you'd make from it.you would be set for life. Let me explain:

By knowing the outcome of any business venture you planned to launch, you'd most likely avoid business failure. And you would be able to potentially create a small fortune for yourself with this power. Knowing the approximate outcome of your business venture, you could tweak your marketing strategy to bring in as much money as you wanted!

Was His New Business Venture Destined For Success or Failure?

Sometime ago, my daughter's friend told me about his new business venture. Here's the detail:

He was buying some slot machines on the net for $205. He was going to sell the machines for $400. What he thought was he was going to make a $195 profit.

But he was wrong. Do you know why?

Because he had other costs, he's not going to have the success he is hoping for. You see, that is why big companies use break-even analysis to determine if they should sell a certain product or service. Now read carefully because this is important.

Fix costs are costs that remain the same over a period of time. For example, your web charges or provider charges are fixed costs. If you store machines for resale the money you're paying for rent is this type of cost too. It is fixed costs.

This means these types of costs are the same whether you sell 1 product or 300,000 units of the same product.

In our example, of the machines, there are web costs of $19.95 a month and storage of the machines for $50 a month. This is a total monthly cost of $69.95 or totally yearly cost of 839.76. As you can see, he has little profit selling a few machines

Let's consider another important factor that determines the future of your business product.

Have you considered variable costs? In our example, the $205 per machine is variable costs. The cost is the cost that changes with the number of units your sale.

If he sells just one he does not make $195 but rather 125.50 and if he sells 58, he makes $11,240.00. If he can sell 400 he can make a great amount of money, $77, 930.05

It costs me $10,000 to get the rights to this program. I had a teacher who has since died have of his business student make this program in excel. So it would be easy to use for anyone.

Recently, I had a client do some work with this software, showing him how easy it was to use. Here are the results:

His total Revenue was $63,000. His fixed costs were $37,800 and the variable costs were $36.00 per month breakeven point was for him selling 700 pairs of skates. That is a lot of skates to sell to break even. The skates sell for $90 and cost the seller $36.00 to purchase.

Using this incredible software we found that if 800 pairs were sold, he would net $5,400. If he sold 945 pairs, he would make $13,230. However, if his marketing efforts could reach 4,000 pairs sold, he would make a net income of $178,200.

You're starting to see the importance of knowing this right?

Now Get Answer To:

- What level of sales must be reached to cover all expenses to break even?
- How many units of product must be sold to earn a specific operating income?
- What will happen to our profitability if we expand our capacity?
- What will be the effect of changing sales people's compensation from fixed monthly salaries to a commission of 10% of sales?
- If we increase our spending to $100,000 per month what increase in sales volume will be required to maintain our current level of income from operations?
- Plus you'll discover more answer with this revolutionary new software
